DESCRIPTIVE Journal Assignment

Write a descriptive journal entry about a person or a place that is important to you. Describe this person or place in such a way that your readers can see that you have been a careful, thoughtful observer, that you know why and how the person or place is significant to you, and that you have carefully considered your reading audience. Re-create for your readers a set of sensory experiences. Words, phrases and details that are meant to stimulate your readers' senses of hearing, smelling, tasting, touching and seeing will predominate.

Focus your essay on a single, statable idea (thesis). Your thesis may be either stated or implied in the essay, but if it is implied, you need to be able to write it in a single declarative sentence.

Your first audience will be your peer editors, and your vision of your audience should also include me.
